RUSSIAN PUSHING AHEAD
ON THE ROMANIAN FRONT

ern end of the Romanian front has been resumed with some measure of success. New ground has been gained along the Kimpulung-Jacobeni rail-

from the Austro-German forces of a point of support in the vicinity of Vale Putna. This town is nine miles southwest of Kimpulung. Bukovina, and about the same distance north of Dobruza, near the point of junction of the boundaries of Bukovina, Transylvania, and Moldavia.

The previous advance here was effected by the Russians in a battle fought last Saturday when Teutonic positions on a front of two miles were pierced according to Petrograd and to 1,160 men and 12 machine guns
were captured.

BOXER'S DEATH
DUE TO "SHOCK"

Killing of Stephen McDonald at Albany
May Mean Repeal of New York
Boxing Law.

ALBANY, Jan. 31.—The death of Stephen McDonald who was killed
during a boxing bout here last night was due to "shock" occasioned by a blow over the solar plexus, according to the decision of Dr. Fred Myers, coroner's physician who performed an autopsy today.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Boxing prohibitory laws today face the fact that the game would suffer further restrictions at the hands of the state legislature.
It was reported that Governor Whitman intended to ask the legislature to repeal the present law which permits round bouts without a decision.
The rumor was without confirmation,
however, either in Albany or New York.

Developments in the boxing game expected to affect the future of the sport include investigation now in progress of charges against Frederick
A. Wenzel, chairman of the state athletic commission, and the death of Stephen McDonald who was killed last night in the first round of a professional bout at Albany.

roll of the Dunbar slag mill. Towsey,
it is said, maintains that he is innocent.

Officials of the Pennsylvania railroad office at Dunbar were "not at all sorry to say anything" this morning concerning the case. The young man was committed to the county jail
on a warrant issued by Justice J. C.
Holsinger of Uniontown.

SUIT OVER PRICE OF SCHOOL LOT IS NOW IN COURT

Appeal of Mr. and Mrs. W. H.
Solomon From Viewers'
Award On Trial.

JURY VIEWS THE GROUND

Trip Made to Connellsville Yesterday Afternoon to Show Jurors Property in Dispute; Taking of Testimony in Court Begun; Defense Starts Case.

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, Jan. 31.—Trial of the action of Mrs. G. F. Solomon and her husband, William H. Solomon, against the school district of the city of Connellsville, was taken up this forenoon in Common Pleas Court before Judge E. H. Reppert. The action was brought into court as an appeal
from the award of the viewers, Mr.
and Mrs. Solomon are the owners of a lot in Fairview avenue, Connellsville,
which was taken by the school board with three other lots for the site for the new high school building now in the course of construction. In some instances and property owners and in others the award of the viewers was accepted by the property owners.

The jury was selected for the trial of the case yesterday and taken by court officers to Connellsville to view the premises. The case was opened this morning for the plaintiff by Attorney James R. Gray. The school board is being represented by Attorney
H. George May, solicitor for the school board, and E. C. Higbee.

Several witnesses were heard for the plaintiff this morning, giving their opinions as to the value of the Solomon property. Mayor Rockwell Martinez of Connellsville testified that it was worth $10,000; E. Dunn, $10,000;
S. C. Brock, $8,250; Charles Welch,
$8,500; Fred J. Shaw, $8,500; L. F.
Ruth, $9,700. Mr. Ruth's testimony, however, was stricken out. The plaintiff's case has not yet been concluded.

Testimony for the defense was resumed before Judge J. C. Van Swearingen today in the suit of Mrs. Annie S. Jones and James J. Jones, her husband, against the West Penn Railway Company. Mr. and Mrs. Jones are seeking $20,000 damages for personal injuries alleged to have been resulting from a collision between a train
on a West Penn car between Iron Bridge and Scottdale on September 7, 1913. Mrs. Jones testified that she received a severe shock while riding in the summer car, and claimed that on account of defective mechanism in the car, the seat had become changed with electricity. The defense of the West Penn company as presented today was that Mrs. Jones was struck by lightning, there having been a severe storm at the time. The plaintiffs are represented by Attorney Harry W.
Byrne, and the defendant by Attorney
L. E. Bravender.

Judge E. H. Reppert yesterday afternoon granted a compulsory non-suit in the trespass action of Mrs. Lou T. Baker and Samuel L. Baker, her husband, of West Brownsville, against
J. W. White, trading as the White Taxicab company. Mr. and Mrs.
Baker sued for $5,000 damages on account of injuries sustained by Mrs.
Baker when she was struck by one of the defendant's automobiles.

The non-suit was granted on the grounds that the plaintiffs had not given sufficient proof of the defendant's negligence to warrant the taking of the case to a jury.

Judge Reppert yesterday refused to grant a preliminary injunction upon petition of Maud E. Hall of Dunbar to restrain Martin O'Hara and Anna O'Hara, his wife, of Connellsville,
from damaging the surface of a land
contract in Dunbar township by removing coal lying under it. The court made an order, however, granting a rule on Mr. and Mrs. O'Hara requiring them to show cause why the restraining order should not be awarded.

COLD WAVE COMING.

Even Though Caterpillars Are Seen,
Winter Is Not Over.

Although both R. V. Rendine and John Curry claim to have seen caterpillars within the last few days, and other signs of spring have been reported, the weather man's noon forecast indicates that winter is not yet over. Rain and snow tonight are to be followed by a severe cold wave tomorrow, according to the official pronouncement.

Mr. Rendine claimed the honor of discovering the first caterpillar of the season near his shop yesterday, but Mr. Curry says he saw one of the insects several days ago.

HUTTON KNEW OF
PEACE NOTE EARLY

Neither He Nor Partners Took Advantage of Information, However,
He Says.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Finding further examination of E. F. Hutton bar-ren of results as far as showing the origin of the information on which the stock brokerage of E. F. Hutton & Company warned its customers that President Wilson's peace note was to be issued, the Congressional "leak" investigating committee decided to summon George A. Ellis, Jr., the member of the firm who wrote the warning telegram. Ellis, according to Hutton, is in New York, but the committee nevertheless decided that he must appear.

F. A. Connolly, who furnished the Hutton firm with the information was expected to take the stand later today.
On his arrival from Washington, he denied that the information came through R. W. Bolling the President's brother-in-law and a member of his firm. He said it was gathered merely from general talk around Washington.

Hutton today said that, although in possession of the information as to the President's note at least two hours before the market closed on December 20, neither he nor any of his eight partners had taken advantage of it.
His customers had an hour's leeway to sell before the market closed. They were long in the aggregate about 340, 000 shares. He was of the opinion that few leaders in the market would have been waiting but promised the examination to furnish the exact amount of selling orders that came in.
He said the information he had on the peace note made little impression on him.

"What killed the market was Secretary Lansing's verge of war statement," he said, the day the President's note was forwarded, December 21.
Customers of the Connolly firm during the "peace period" in the market,
lost $40,000, it was brought out.

BLOW ON HIS HEAD

Morgagna Physicians Believe They Can Restore Mount Pleasant Lad to Normal Mentality; Confessed He Set Fire to Four Buildings on Jan. 11.

Examination of Arthur Queer, the 12-year old Mount Pleasant fire fiend, who confessed to setting fire to four buildings in the business district of that town on January 11, has shown that the boy's mentality has been impaired by pressure of skull bones on his brain. The lad was taken to Morgagna reform school and the authorities there had his skull examined. The finding was reported to the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Queer, of Mount Pleasant, yesterday.

Morgagna physicians say that the boy probably suffered a hard blow on the head at some time causing part of the skull to press upon the brain.
This condition has been known to cause incurability in other boys.
When the boy suffered such a blow is not known for his parents say he never complained of being hurt.

The authorities have signified their willingness to operate on the boy in the near future as it is believed he can be converted into a normal lad. The operation is a delicate one but has been performed successfully before.

Young Queer was arrested several days after the epidemic of fires in Mount Pleasant. At first he accused another boy, Arthur Stillman, of causing the fires but later he confessed that he alone was responsible.
He was taken before the juvenile court at Greensburg on Saturday.

Queer told the authorities he set fire to the buildings because he liked to see the fire trucks go by. This fact led the court authorities to suspect that his mind was affected.

The series of fires attributed to the boy caused a loss of about $15,000.

LODGES HELP TO SWELL HOME FUND

City Odd Fellows Contribute Toward
"Wayside Inn" Extension
Project.

William McKinley lodge, I. O. O.
F., at its regular meeting here last night, donated $125 to "The Wayside Inn," a home for aged Odd Fellows at Grove City. General Worth lodge,
the other local division of the I. O.
O. F., had previously set aside $100 for the same purpose. Each of the lodges was assessed for a certain amount because of the project which is now about to buy 125 acres of ground about the home, the farming of which is expected to make the institution independent. Just 195 Western Pennsylvania lodges are interested in the home.

At last evening's meeting, which was attended by 50 members and 10
visitors, a new degree team for William McKinley lodge of 30 men was formed, this to be under the direction of John Wilder. Next Tuesday the team will give five members the initiation degree. Mr. Wilder indicated that there would be a banquet
to the team about six weeks.

Following this session a joint meeting of General Worth and William McKinley lodges was held, to make further arrangements to entertain the state officers who will visit here on February 12. The officers will make their headquarters at the Arlington Hotel while here. Following the inited session in Markell hall, at which the degrees of chief patriarch and past grand will be conferred, an open meeting will be held in the Orpheum Theatre. Odd Fellows and their friends from all over the county have been invited to this session. The entertainment provided will consist of motion pictures and music. The visiting officers will then make addresses, and a public reception in the lobby of the theatre will conclude the ceremonies.

DOG FIREMEN'S MASCOT

Strange Animal Follows Truck to Every Fire.

Although the firemen have not officially recognized a mascot, one has attached himself, and he faithfully follows the truck to every fire. A big dog, seemingly of no certain breed, has formed a habit of meeting the truck between First and Second streets and running beside it to all fires.

Whom the animal belongs to is not known. He just exists, although somebody recently donated a collar to him. One thing the firemen are sure of, the animal doesn't board with them at the station.

Although given an encouragement the dog lies in wait for the truck. He seldom ever misses an alarm. As soon as he hears the siren, he runs for Crawford avenue and generally meets the truck at the bridge, running alongside until the fire is reached.

The firemen have not had a mascot
since the days of the old firewagon.
Then a big black and white spotted dog always ran ahead of the horses.

VIRGINIA FARMER

Restored To Health By Vinol

After a "t" was weak, run-down, and appetite was poor, I could not sleep nights and was rapidly losing weight, but I am a farmer and had to work. Medicine had failed to help me until I took Vinol. After taking three bottles my appetite is fine, I sleep well, my blood is good and I am well again.—Orlando W. Borker.

Vinol, which contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron, manganese, potassium and glycerophosphates, is guaranteed to overcome weak, run-down conditions, chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis. Laughery Drug Co., Connelville. Vinol is sold in the West Side by Fred H. Harnelung—Adv.

The United States is Yours if you are in good health. The United States spells Opportunity. Health comes from right selection of food and right habits. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits for breakfast will supply more nutriment than many a two-dollar meal, and costs only four or five cents. A meal to work on, to play on. Shredded Wheat is ready-cooked, and ready-to-eat.

HERE'S PROOF

A Connelville Citizen Tells of His Experience.

"You have a right to doubt statements of people living far away but can you doubt Connelville endorsements?"

Read it: E. D. Barclay, shoemaker, 124 D. Main St., Connelville, Pa., says: "I had a severe attack of kidney and pain in my back. I could hardly straighten up and didn't rest well at night. The kidney secretions were discolored and contained sediment. Don't kidney pills promptly relieved the lameness and soreness in my back and cleared the kidney secretions. I now rest better and don't have any trouble from my kidneys." (Statement given October 12, 1916.)

Over four years later, Mrs. Barclay said: "Don't kidney pills entirely cured me and my back has been in good shape for a long time." Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Don't kidney pills—the same that Mr. Barclay has twice publicly recommended.

HIS COLD GOES OVER NIGHT WITH NEW TREATMENT

Pottstown Father Uses One Application of Vick's VapoRub.

YOU JUST RUB VICK'S ON.

Mr. Joseph Hane, 355 Apple St., is the father of this handsome youngster. Last winter, when the Southern remedy Vick's VapoRub Salve, was being introduced in Pottstown, Druggist Chas. S. Bent presented Mr. Hane with a jar, and asked that he give it a thorough trial and report the results. Mr. Hane writes:

"My little boy took sick one night very suddenly with a heavy cold, no we applied your salve on his chest and saved ourselves going for the doctor. The next day we could scarcely tell he had a cold. It is a fact that most colds are relieved in one night, and every usually in fifteen minutes just by applying VapoRub over throat and chest and covering with a warm flannel cloth. This preparation is in the form of vapors. These vapors open the air passages and loosen the phlegm. The salve is sold at 50c or $1.00. At all druggists."

MUST KEEP UP THE ROADS.

If a recent decision of Judge Subert of Perry county is sustained the office of road supervisor in this state will lose much of its charm for certain citizens who are anxious to serve in that capacity.

In a case recently brought before the Perry county court Judge Subert decided that it is incumbent upon the township road supervisors to keep the roads in a state of repair, without regard to the cost, scarcity of labor or other causes. In their defense to a charge of negligence the supervisors set up the claim that the taxpayers of their township would have complained, as is sometimes their habit, at the expense necessary to be incurred, due principally to the high price of labor. The court rather sharply reminded the supervisors that they had no right to evade their duty, even if followed by criticism, and that under the law they were legally bound to have the work done even if it did cost more than it would at other times.

This decision, it is claimed by the higher courts, will place upon the supervisors a weightier obligation than many of them have been willing to assume. It will impress them with the necessity of giving rather more attention than is ordinarily the custom to the duties of their office, at least to the extent of preventing the roads under their care from becoming impassable or dangerous. They may find it necessary to incur considerably greater expense, but if they are more zealous to avoid criticism through higher taxes for road purposes than they are to discharge their full duties under the law, they may have occasion to feel the force of Judge Subert's decision.

The maintenance of the roads has become a matter of more importance than at any previous time in our history and calls for intelligent effort and application on part of the supervisors, which if given, will result in better roads and lessened expense of maintenance. They must be prepared, however, to meet the situation as a matter of duty rather than as a means to perpetuate themselves in office.

A Wall street speculator who contributed $50,000 to the Democratic campaign fund, and who cleared up $475,183 on the peace note "loans," claims that his profits on the latter transaction were due entirely to his foresight. Some well-informed Republicans may be inclined to think that the greater foresight was displayed in making the $50,000 contribution. Taking down the $475,183 was merely a matter of hindsight.

By dropping to $11.01 each there is a decided slump in the average contribution per miner on the Wine Out of the District Roll of Honor.

The coke operators and other large employers of labor who are looking to the end of the war as the end of the labor shortage may, instead, find it to be the beginning, if all the foreigners who are thinking about it go back to their native lands.

The "House of Death" is to have another trial.

At his 8-cent luncheon under his 15-cent-a-day bill of fare President Wilson will be allowed one date alone with other articles which will be relished most. The date Versailles was ordered "to get Villa, dead or alive," or the date when Versailles evacuated Mexico?

The members of the coast guard are giving the border veterans some pointers on turning out for drill. But the cadets are not on the border.

There is plenty of precedent, and no lack of good sound common sense, in President Wilson's veto of the immigration bill on the literacy test. It is too late a day for us to shut the door of opportunity we have so long kept open to the millions of unfortunate and other hands who want to become good and useful citizens of our country.

A wholesale change in the Cabinet is said to be scheduled following the second inauguration. Why the delay?

The Building & Loan Associations have again shown their adaptability to the needs of a building community. The extremely high prices for materials and labor prevented much building last year, but the associations did a good business and are in excellent shape to help home-builders when a more propitious time for building comes.

The umbrella makers are "feeling" the paper drinking cup because it hinders their business. The paper-makers are for it because it helps their business. The public is for it because it prevents business for the doctors and undertakers.

Finding a man for a Chicago woman is but another proof of the widespread character of "The Courier's" circulation and its value as an advertising medium. Now is the time to advertise.

Three More Days of New Year Clearance Sale

The bargains for the last three days will be in men's and boys' clothing. The feature of most Special Sales is price—the feature of this sale is merchandise. It also offers you the finest ready-for-service suits and overcoats that are made. At this season there are sales galore, reductions that look attractive on paper—but don't make the mistake of judging clothing by reductions. Judge the reductions by the clothes! The reductions in this semi-annual Clearance Sale are most liberal, because the original prices were substantially lower than was justified by the production cost to us. But it is the clothing that makes the reductions worth while. The feature of this sale is merchandise—fabrics which represent the handsomest accumulation of colorings and weaves of the season—Suit and Overcoat models that are the star performers in current styles—and workmanship which is the work of America's greatest tailoring talent. This great opportunity is not only for men, it is also for boys. But bear in mind it is a Clean-up Sale of winter weights, winter styles of new high class goods. If you are in need of clothing it is an opportunity that you should not miss. It is an occasion by which you can save lots of money.

HONEY CROP VALUABLE

Bees Did Good Work in This State
Last Year.

The honey bee in Pennsylvania during the past year produced honey to the value of $1,560,000, according to statistics just announced by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. It was one of the best years ever known to the industry in the State and the reports from all sections indicate that there is a gradual increase in the number of colonies of bees being kept on the farms and by orchardists
throughout the State.

It is estimated that there are 140,000
colonies of bees in the State and the average production per colony was estimated at 54 pounds for 1916. This shows a production of 7,600,000 pounds of honey which at an average price of eighteen cents a pound makes the production of the busy bees worth $1,368,000. It is estimated that there are 28,000 bee-keepers in the State.

Nuxated Iron to Make New Age of Beautiful Women and Vigorous Iron Men

Say Physicians—Quickly Puts Roses Into the Cheeks of Women and Most Astonishing Youthful Power In to the Veins of Men—It Often Increases
the Strength and Endurance of Delicate, Nervous "Run Down" Folks 200 Per Cent. in Two Weeks' Time.

A Wonderful Discovery Which Promises to Mark a New Era in Medical Science

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Since the remarkable discovery of organic iron, Nuxated Iron or "Per Kinate," as the French call it, has taken the country
by storm, it is conservatively estimated that over three million people annually are taking it in this country alone. Most astonishing results are reported from its use by both physicians and laymen. So much so that doctors predict that we shall soon have a new age of far more beautiful, rosaceous women and vigorous iron men.
Dr. King, a New York physician and author, when interviewed on the subject, said: "There can be no vigorous iron man without iron. Paleor mount anemia. Anemia means iron deficiency. The skin of anemic men and women is pale; the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone; the brain fails and the memory fades; often they become weak, nervous, irritable, dependent and inefficient. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the lives go from their cheeks.

"In the most common forms of American, the starches, sugars, table syrups,
candies, polished rice, white bread,
soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, appetizers, tipples, wafers, cereals, degenerated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refined processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cooking, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked, are responsible for another grave iron loss.

"Therefore, if you wish to preserve your youthful vim and vigor to a ripe
old age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not enough salt."

Dr. Sauer, who has studied abroad in great European medical institutions,
said: "We have said a hundred times over organic iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only take a little organic iron, they would not take the old forms of refined iron, iron acetate, or the pure iron simply to save a few cents. The iron deficiency is the cause of the iron coloring matter in the blood of her children is, almost not that kind of iron.

You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete and prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and drank his blood with iron before he went into the arena, while many another has gone down in lachrymose defeat simply for the lack of iron."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jacques, "Visiting Surgeon at St. Elizabeth's Hospital of New York City, said, "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication, as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But in the case of Nuxated Iron I feel I would be coming in my duty not to mention it. I have tried it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

NOTE—Nuxated Iron which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases is not a patent medicine
nor is it a remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the "old" iron pills, Nuxated Iron is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to refund $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 40 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They only offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in 10 days' time. It is dispensed in this city by A. A. Clarke and all good druggists.—Adv.

WEB OF STEEL

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

"AUTHOR OF 'THE CHANCE OF COURAGE' AND 'THE ISLAND OF REGRET', ETC., AND

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY JR.

CIVIL ENGINEER.

"You can break anything you like," said the colonel with heavy pleasure. "So long as the bridge stands."

"And that is going to be forever, isn't it, Mr. Meade?" asked Helen quickly. "I don't think anything built by man will survive quite that long," he answered as much to her father and the others as to her. "But this gives every promise of lasting its time."

"You know," observed Curtis, "there was some question in my mind about these big compression members. When I first studied your father's drawings, I wondered if he had made the facing strong enough to hold the webs."

"That matter is very thoroughly gone into," said Meade quickly. "It was the very point which I myself had questioned, but father is absolutely confident that we provided nothing enough to take up all the stresses. I looked into that matter myself," he went on with much emphasis.

"I guess it's all right," said Curtis lightly. "I examined the webs and in-laps carefully last afternoon. They seem to be as right as possible."

"Those trusses," said Abbott emphatically. "Will stand forever. You need not worry about that."

"Are you going to finish this job on time?" asked Severance, the vice president. "You know the financial end of it is mine, and much depends upon the date of completion."

"That depends upon you people at the shop, doctor. If you get the stuff here to me I'll get it in place in short order," answered Meade.

"We aren't working about anything with you and Meade on the job, Abbott," said the colonel readily.

"Yes, you are, father," said the girl. "Ever since the girl's rational has been started you have sincerely been able to give a thought even to her. I'm tired of it. I hope the old thing will soon be finished, so that we can all go back to normal life again."

"I hope so, too," assented the colonel. "And I guess you are right. The fact is the bridge is an absorbing work. It is the biggest job the Martlet has ever handled. Indeed, it is the biggest thing in the world. It's the greatest challenge, the greatest span, the heaviest trusses, the—"

"I've heard all about it," interrupted the girl, waving him into silence. "Ever since you began it. Sometimes I think it's beginning to absorb me, too."

"You don't look like it," whispered Meade, under cover of the general laugh that greeted her remark.

"What do I look like?" she whispered back quickly, in return.

But Meade had no opportunity to reply.

"It is not exactly a subject for dinner conversation," said the colonel with a grin. "But all of us here, you, my dear, must realize how much that bridge means to us. I won't do so far as to say that its failure would ruin us, but it would be hard for us to survive."

"Have you ever known anything that my father designed to fail?" asked Meade somewhat loftily.

"No, and that is why we took his word in spite of it."

"In spite of what, sir?"

"In spite of Curtis here and some others."

"Mr. Curtis," said Meade, turning to the chief engineer. "If it will add anything to your peace of mind, I will assume my full share of responsibility for the Martlet's work. You know the books of Schmidt-Chemnitz, the great German bridge engineer?"

Curtis nodded.

"At first I—that is, we—thought that there might possibly be weakness in these compression members, but I checked them with the actual loads and then submitted the figures to my father, and then he went through the whole calculation and applied coefficients he felt to be safe."

"I'm willing to take your father's judgment in the matter rather than Schmidt-Chemnitz, or anybody's," said Curtis. "So successful has been his career."

"Now that I have seen the members in place I have no doubt that they will stand," said the colonel.

"Sure they will," added Abbott with assurance and confidence, an assurance which helped even Meade to believe.

"Of course we all know," said Doctor Severance, who had been long enough in touch with engineering to learn much about it. "That there is at least some or less of experimenting in the design of a new thing like this."

"Yes," said the colonel. "But we don't want our experiment to fail in this instance."

"They won't," said the young man boldly.

He had been since persuaded himself that he had been all wrong and his father all right, so that he entered upon his defense and the defense of the bridge with enthusiasm. He was ready to break a lance with anybody on its behalf.

"Well," began the colonel, "we have every confidence in your father and in you. I don't mind telling you, Meade, I never got to go any further, that when this bridge is completed we shall be prepared to make you personally a very advantageous offer for future relations with the Martlet company if you care to accept it. On the strength of your probable acceptance we are already planning to venture into certain foreign fields which we have hitherto not felt it to our interest to enter."

"That is most kind of you, Colonel Illingworth," said the young man gratefully. "And it appeals to me very strongly. I have been associated with father hitherto. He wants to retire with the completion of this bridge, and before I open any office of my own I should like the advantage of further experience. Such a connection as you propose seems to me to be ideal, from my point of view. No man could have any better backing than the Martlet Bridge company."

"Well, we shall look to you to be worthy of it," said the colonel kindly. His glance vaguely comprehended his daughter as he spoke. Colonel Illingworth was a very rich man. The Martlet Bridge company was nearest his heart, but he had many other interests. His only daughter would eventually be the mistress of a great fortune. Meade was not poor. Of course, his means were limited compared to Colonel Illingworth's great fortune, but what he had earned, saved, and invested was sufficient, even for two. And he would inherit much more. Old Meade had not been the greatest conqueror of his generation, for nothing, independent and self-respecting, young Meade could not be considered a fortune hunter by anybody. He was the kind of man to whom a decent father likes to trust his daughter. Old Colonel Illingworth found himself gazing wonderingly at the two.

After dinner the men sat out on the observation platform with their cigars and coffee. For those that liked it there was something in full glasses in which ice tinkled when the glasses were agitated, but Meade declined all three.

"With your permission, sir," he said, "I am going to take Miss Illingworth out on the bridge. The moon is rising and—"

"I have heard so much about it," said the girl, standing by the door. "I want to see it when the workers are all off and it is all quiet, in the moonlight."

"Very well. You had better change your dress, Helen, before you go," said the colonel, turning to Abbott and engaging him in conversation on technical matters.

"I'll wait for you at the front door of the car," said the engineer, his heart beating like a pneumatic cylinder and sounding almost as loud in his ears.

"I won't be long," she whispered as she left him.

Helen did not want to waste time any more than Meade did. So, instead of taking her father's advice, all she did was to cover her beautiful shoulders with a light wrap and hasten to the car door in the shortest possible time. Every moment they were apart.

darkness all the unsightly evidences of construction work were hidden.

"Oh," said the woman drawing a long breath. "I don't wonder that you love it. Isn't it beautiful, hung up in the air that way? One would think it wasn't steel but silver and gold and—"

"The was," said the man, "when I loved it thing like that above everything except my father, but now—"

In spite of herself the woman looked at him.

"But now?" she whispered as he hesitated, and then she turned her head half fearful of his answer.

"I am almost afraid to say it," he said, lowering his voice to match her own.

"A soldier of steel," she said, "and afraid!"

"Well, then, all that was the second now takes the third place."

"And before your father comes?"

But she did give him a time to answer. "Come," she said, "let us go out on the bridge."

"It's a rough place for you. Those little slippers you wear—"

He looked down, and as if in obedience to his glance she outstretched her foot from her gown. It was not the smallest foot that ever upbore a woman. Quite the contrary. Which is not saying it was too large, not at all. It was just right for her height and figure, and its shape and shoe left nothing to be desired.

"Never mind the slippers," she said; "they are stronger than they look. They'll serve."

"But the distance between here and the bridge is inches deep in dust."

"Dust?" she exclaimed in dismay. "I don't mind rough walking, but dust—"

"I never thought of that," admitted the man. "The feet is I have thought of nothing but you since I saw you, but now we'll have to go back over it."

"I shall not go back," she answered firmly.

He stepped down off the platform, and before she knew what he would be doing, he lifted her straight up in his arms. He did not carry her like a baby, he held her erect, cradled against his breast, and before she had time to utter a protest, or even to say a word, he started through the dusty roadway toward the bridgehead.

It was a strange position. She knew she ought to protest, but the words would not come. Whilst she was trying to think them up, they had crossed the little stream, the river, and were between the portal of the bridge and the end of the platform. Then he set her down gently.

"Thank you," she said simply. "That was very nice of you. You are wonderfully strong."

The moon, by this time, had passed the floor level and the crowd of people on the bridge and floor boats and stilts. The silence of the half-light, the mystery of it all oppressed them a little. It was with beating hearts that they pressed on.

CHAPTER III.

Fall and Revelation.

"It's rather confused in here," said the man, "but we will soon get it sorted out. The end and then the view is magnificent. You can see up and down the river for miles and the night boat will be along in a few minutes."

"Isn't that it?" asked the woman, pointing up the river to where a cluster of lights rounded a huge bend not far away, and swung out in midstream.

"Yes," said the man. "If we listen I think we can hear her."

They both stopped and sure enough, faintly across the water came the noise of clanking paddles of the big river steamer. With that sound also mingled the song of the night wind, for a while came a gentle, gentle, making strange, and harmonious as it sifted through the taut and rigid bars of steel. She listened enchanted with the sound.

The big floor beams extended from one side to the other of the bridge, between the trusses at intervals of fifty feet. At right angles to them and six feet apart, the stringers ran lengthwise parallel to the trusses. There and there pieces of timber falsework had been thrown across the stringers for the convenience of the workmen, but as these two slowly moved toward midstream, the falsework became fewer and finally there was nothing to be seen but the heavy floor beams and the lighter stringers.

After they passed the top of the pier and got beyond the small space of river bank on which the pier was set, there came nothing but open space and the water, now smooth and quiet, lay, except these cross-girders of steel on either hand beyond the planking in the tracks.

"Have you a clear head?" asked the man. "It means does it affect you to be on high elevations? Do you get dizzy?"

"I never have," was the answer, "but—"

"I think I'll hold you," was the reply. He grasped her firmly by the arm. The loose wrap she was wearing over her shoulders did not cover her arms, and she was a bare arm that he took in his hand.

"I beg your pardon," he said quickly, "but—"

"It doesn't matter. I understand. You would better hold me, I might slip." There was something electric and compelling in the pressure of his strong hand upon the firm flesh of her round arm. She shrank closer to him, again unthinkingly, by a natural impulse.

The moon was now well clear of the brow of the highest hill. Its yellow was turning to silver and in its cold and beautiful illumination the whole river flowed bright beneath them. On every inch of the bridge was now clearly revealed in the white, passionless light.

Fifty feet away it ended in the air. They were now almost directly beneath the traveler, near the end of the suspended span. His huge legs sprawled out like those of a gigantic animal on the extreme edges of the bridge on either side above their heads. The wooden platform on the track ran out half the distance to the bridge end. Slowly the two walked along it until but a few feet were left between them and the naked floor beams and the stringers carrying the ties to which the rails were bolted and the planks laid.

By the side of the track on the top of the stringers had been placed a pile of material accumulated by a large flat plate of steel, which lay level upon it. It was triangular in shape, the blunt point toward the river. The base which was about six feet wide paralleled the course of the river. The plate on the top of the pile was raised about three feet above the level of the track. They stopped abreast of it.

"Can't we go any further?" asked the girl in low tones, still close to the young man, who still lightly clasped her arm.

"I am afraid it wouldn't be safe to go any farther," he said.

"I want to see the steamer. It will pass directly under the bridge."

"They have no business to pass under the bridge," said Meade. "They've been warned hundreds of times and orders have been issued. There is no danger that something might fall."

"Why can't I stand up there?"

"On that gusset plate?"

"Is that what you call it?"

"Yes, it bears the same relation to structural steel that a gusset does to a man's dress."

"Exactly. But can't I stand on it?"

"No," he answered.

He climbed to the center of it, lifted himself up and down on his feet to test it, and found it still apparently.

"I think so, but I shall have to put you up," he said at last as he lifted Meade and set her down on her feet in the middle of the plate of steel.

"Oh, there comes the steamer," she cried. "I can see it beautifully from here."

"Be careful. You must not move. Stand perfectly steady. I am not so sure of that plate."

He reached over from where he stood on the track below her and by her side and gathered the material of her dress in an iron grasp.

"I do not think that is necessary," she said. "This plate seems as solid as the rest of the bridge and—oh, there's the steamer." She's tight under us.

The big river craft was filled with light and laughter. The wind fortuitously blew the smoke away from the bridge so that they had a clear and perfect view of her. There was a hand playing a violin. They heard the music above the beat of the whirling paddles, the song of the rising wind.

The passengers were congregated about the rails on the upper decks staring upward. The bridge was as fascinating to them as it was to the people ashore evidently.

"Are you looking?" asked the delighted man. "Why don't you come up here yourself. You can see so much better!"

The man had dropped her gown, lifted his right foot to the pile on the stringers to follow her suggestion. Thoughtlessly she stepped toward the outer end to give him room, quite forgetful of his caution. Before he could complete his step or vain her of the danger, it now bent forward. It tilted distinctly. In spite of herself, Helen Illingworth was carried still farther forward as she sought to regain her balance.

The piece of steel began to slip downward, grinding on the pile of beams as it moved; another second and it would be off and on its way irretrievably.

Meade threw himself at the girl. He lunged out and caught her just as she was slipping downward with the plate now almost perpendicular. To catch her he had to step to the very edge of the planking beyond which the rails ran, and he was on the edge of the beam.

With a tremendous effort he caught her by the waist, swung her up and in, and stood still on the brink quivering, heaving himself desperately backward as he sought to maintain his balance and take the backward step that meant safety.

What should rise from the steamer as the huge plate dropped, like the blade of a mighty guillotine, straight down through the air. If it had struck the boat, it would have cut through like a knife. Fortunately it cleared the gateway by inches. In a second it had disappeared. Screams arose from the boat which promptly sheered off into midstream.

Helen Illingworth's back had been toward Meade as he seized her. She had seen as he had everything that had happened. Recovering herself at last, she stepped back slowly, almost dragging her, until they were a safe distance from the edge. His face was ghastly white in the moonlight. Sweat covered his forehead. He was shaking like a wind-blown leaf.

"The whole world went black when I saw you go," he said slowly.

"Do you never let me go?" asked the girl, trembling herself.

There was no necessity for maidenly reticence now.

"Care?" said the man. "Care?"

"I am all right now."

"You are more fortunate than I. I stood to lose you, you stood to lose only life. Don't you see? Can't you understand?"

Suddenly he swept her

CHARGE FOUR WITH PLOTING TO KILL
BRITISH PREMIER

Woman and Two Daughters Implicated in Conspiracy Against Lloyd George.

MAN ALSO IS INVOLVED

Mrs. Alice Wheelton, Her Two Daughters and Alfred Mason, Husband of One of the Latter, Accused in Information of Scotland Yard Men.

By Associated Press.
DUBLIN, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Alice Wheelton, her two daughters, and the husband of one of them, Alfred Mason, were charged at the Guild Hall here today with conspiring to murder Premier Lloyd George and Arthur Henderson, member of the House of Commons and of the war council.

Information laid by inspectors of Scotland Yard, charged that "the defendants on divers days between December 25 and the date of laying this information, did amongst themselves unlawfully and wickedly conspire, confederate and agree together against the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George and the Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson willfully and with malice aforethought to kill and murder contrary to the offenses against persons act of 1802 and against the peace of our Lord and King, his crown and dignity."

The information is signed by A. H. Bodkin, prosecutor, on behalf of the Crown.

After formal evidence concerning the arrest had been given the case was adjourned until Saturday.

Mrs. Wheelton, who is 50 years of age, resides in Derby with her daughter, Ann, aged 27, who is a school teacher, and her son, who is 24, is a clerk of Southampton.

On being arrested the defendants denied any knowledge of the charge. They declined to make any statement.

RUSSIANS PUSHING AHEAD
ON THE HUMANIAN FRONT

The Russian offensive on the northern end of the Rumanian front has been resumed with some measure of success. New ground has been gained along the Kimpolung-Jacobson railroad where the Russians are pushing southwestward.

Berlin today conceded the capture of a point of support in the vicinity of Vale Putna. This town is nine miles south of Kimpolung, Bukovina, and about the same distance north of Dorohotza, near the point of junction of the boundaries of Bukovina, Transylvania, and Moldavia.

The previous advance here was effected by the Russians in a battle fought last Saturday when Russian positions on the front two miles were cleared according to Petrograd and 3,150 men and 15 machine guns were captured.

On the northern end of the Russian front the Germans again took the offensive and stormed a Russian position on the east bank of the River Vistula taking more than 900 prisoners and capturing 15 machine guns. There has been sharp fighting on the Lorraine front on the French front. The French penetrated two lines of German trenches here, Paris reports, routing the French garrison and taking prisoners. Berlin recently took the line as a French attack which was repulsed.

Supports Movement to Turn Clock Forward During Summer Months.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—A letter from President Wilson supporting the object of the movement to turn the clock forward one hour during the summer months was read today at the National Daylight Association convention.

The communication came in response to a letter written to the President by Marcus K. Marks, chairman of the convention, setting forth the objects of the association.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Congressional action to authorize the setting of all clocks in the country one hour ahead of the present standard time was recommended to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States today at the opening of its fifth annual meeting, which will end Friday night, by a committee on "daylight saving."

As an alternative the committee suggested the plan at least for the months between April 1 and December 1.

Eight hundred national and local commercial organizations were said to be represented at the meeting. The railroad situation was the topic for tonight's session and the result of a referendum of members of railroad confederate and agree together against the Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George and the Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson willfully and with malice aforethought to kill and murder contrary to the offenses against persons act of 1802 and against the peace of our Lord and King, his crown and dignity."

The information is signed by A. H. Bodkin, prosecutor, on behalf of the Crown.

After formal evidence concerning the arrest had been given the case was adjourned until Saturday.

Mrs. Wheelton, who is 50 years of age, resides in Derby with her daughter, Ann, aged 27, who is a school teacher, and her son, who is 24, is a clerk of Southampton.

On being arrested the defendants denied any knowledge of the charge. They declined to make any statement.

RUSSIANS PUSHING AHEAD
ON THE HUMANIAN FRONT

The Russian offensive on the northern end of the Rumanian front has been resumed with some measure of success. New ground has been gained along the Kimpolung-Jacobson railroad where the Russians are pushing southwestward.

Berlin today conceded the capture of a point of support in the vicinity of Vale Putna. This town is nine miles south of Kimpolung, Bukovina, and about the same distance north of Dorohotza, near the point of junction of the boundaries of Bukovina, Transylvania, and Moldavia.

The previous advance here was effected by the Russians in a battle fought last Saturday when Russian positions on the front two miles were cleared according to Petrograd and 3,150 men and 15 machine guns were captured.

On the northern end of the Russian front the Germans again took the offensive and stormed a Russian position on the east bank of the River Vistula taking more than 900 prisoners and capturing 15 machine guns. There has been sharp fighting on the Lorraine front on the French front. The French penetrated two lines of German trenches here, Paris reports, routing the French garrison and taking prisoners. Berlin recently took the line as a French attack which was repulsed.

Appeal of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Solson From Viewers' Award On Trial.

JURY VIEWS THE GROUND

Trip Made to Connellsville Yesterday Afternoon to Show Jurors Property in Dispute; Taking of Testimony in Court Begun; Defense Starts Case.

Special to The Courier.
UNIONTOWN, Jan. 31.—Trial of the action of Mrs. Gaila F. Solson and her husband, William H. Solson, against the school district of the city of Connellsville, was taken up this forenoon in Common Pleas Court before Judge E. H. Ruppert. The action was brought into court as an appeal from the award of the viewers. Mr. and Mrs. Solson are the owners of a lot in Fairview avenue, Connellsville, which was taken by the school board with three other lots for the site for the new high school building now in the course of construction. In some instances amicable settlements were made with the property owners and in others the award of the viewers was accepted by the property owners.

The jury was selected for the trial of the case yesterday. The court officers to Connellsville to view the premises. The case was opened this morning for the plaintiff by Attorney James R. Cray. The school board is being represented by Attorney H. George May, collector for the school board, and E. C. Higbee.

Several witnesses were heard for the plaintiff this morning giving their opinions as to the value of the Solson property. Mayor Rockwell Marketta of Connellsville testified that it was worth $10,000; E. Dunn, $10,000; S. E. Frock, $8,500; Charles Wehse, $8,500; Lloyd J. Shaw, $5,000; L. F. Eick, $5,000. Mr. Ruppert's testimony, however, was that the value of the plaintiff's case has not yet been concluded.

Testimony for the defense was resumed before Judge J. Q. Van Swearingen today in the suit of Mrs. Annie Jones and James J. Jones, her husband, against the West Penn Railway Company. Mr. and Mrs. Jones are seeking $20,000 damages for personal injuries alleged to have been received by Mrs. Jones while traveling on a West Penn car between Iron Bridge and Scoldale on September 7, 1915. Mrs. Jones testified that she was riding in the summer car, and claimed that on account of defective mechanism in the car, the seat had become charged with electricity. The defense of the West Penn company as presented today was that Mrs. Jones was struck by lightning, that the car was not a summer car at the time. The plaintiff is represented by Attorney Harry W. Byrne and the defendant by Attorney L. B. Brownfield.

Judge E. H. Ruppert yesterday afternoon granted a compulsory non-suit in the trespass action of Mrs. Lou Baker and Samuel L. Baker, her husband, of West Brownsville, against J. W. White, trading as the White Taxi cab company, Mr. and Mrs. Baker sued for $5,000 damages on account of injuries sustained by Mrs. Baker when she was struck by one of the defendant's automobiles.

The non-suit was granted on the grounds that the plaintiffs had not given sufficient proof of the defendant's negligence to warrant the taking of the case to a jury.

Judge Ruppert yesterday refused to grant a preliminary injunction upon petition of Maud E. Hair of Dunbar to restrain Martin O'Hara and Anna O'Hara, wife of the latter, from removing the surface of a land tract in Dunbar township by removing coal lying under it. The court made an order, however, granting a rule on Mr. and Mrs. O'Hara requiring them to show cause why the restraining order should not be awarded.

PEACE NOTE EARLY

Neither He Nor Partners Took Advantage of Information, However, He Says.

By Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Plaiding further examination of E. F. Hutton baron of results as far as showing the origin of the information on which the stock brokerage of E. F. Hutton & Company warned its customers that President Wilson's peace note was to be issued, the Congressional "bank" investigating committee decided to summon George A. Ellis, Jr., the member of the firm who wrote the warning telegram. Ellis, according to Hutton, is in Georgia, but the committee nevertheless decided that he must appear.

E. A. Connolly, who furnished the Hutton firm with the information was expected to take the stand later today. On his arrival from Washington, he denied that the information came through R. W. Bolling, the President's brother-in-law and a member of his firm. He said it was gathered merely from general talk around Washington.

Hutton today said that, although in possession of the information as to the President's note at least two hours before the market closed on December 20, neither he nor any of his eight partners had taken advantage of it. His customers had an hour's leeway to sell before the market closed. They were long in the aggregate about 340,000 shares. He was of the opinion that he headed the warning but promised the committee to furnish the exact amount of selling orders that came in. He said the information he had on the peace note made little impression on him.

"What killed the market was Secretary Lansing's verge of war statement," he said, the day the President's note was forwarded, December 21. "Customers of the Connolly firm during the 'peace period' in the market lost $40,000. It was brought out."

Morganza Physicians Believe They Can Restore Mount Pleasant Fire Fiend, Mental; Confessed He Set Fire to Four Buildings on Jan. 14.

Examination of Arthur Queer, the 12 year old Mount Pleasant fire fiend, who confessed to setting fire to four buildings in the business district of that town on January 14, has shown that the boy's mentality has been impaired by pressure of skull bones on his brain. The lad was taken to Morganza reform school and the authorities there had his skull examined.

The finding was reported to the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Queer, of Mount Pleasant, yesterday. Morganza physicians say that the boy probably suffered a hard blow on the head at some time causing part of the skull to press upon the brain. This condition has been known to cause incorrigibility in other boys.

When the boy suffered such a blow is not known for his parents say he never complained of being hurt. The authorities have signified their intention to operate on the boy in the near future as it is believed he can be converted into a normal lad. The operation is a delicate one but has been performed successfully before.

Young Queer was arrested several days after the epidemic of fires in Mount Pleasant. At first he accused another boy, Arthur Sullivan, of causing the fires but later he confessed that he was responsible. He was taken before the juvenile court at Greensburg on Saturday.

Queer told the authorities he set fire to the buildings because he liked to see the fire trucks go by. This fact led the county authorities to suspect that his mind was affected.

LODGES HELP TO SWELL HOME FUND

City Odd Fellows Contribute Toward "Wayside Inn" Extension Project.

William McKinley lodge, I. O. O. F., at its regular meeting here last night, donated $125 to "The Wayside Inn," a home for aged Odd Fellows at Grove City. General Worth lodge, the other local division of the I. O. O. F., had previously set aside $110 for the same purpose. Each of the lodges was assessed for a certain amount, because of the project which is now about to buy 125 acres of ground about the home, the farming of which is expected to make the institution independent. Just 195 Western Pennsylvania lodges are interested in the home.

At last evening's meeting, which was attended by 50 members and 10 visitors, a new degree team for William McKinley lodge of 30 men was formed, this to be under the direction of John Wilder. Next Tuesday, the team will give five members the initiatory degree. Mr. Wilder indicated that there would be a banquet to the team in about six weeks.

Following this session, a joint meeting of General Worth and William McKinley lodges was held, to make further arrangements to acquire the state officers who will visit here on February 12. The officers will make their headquarters at the Arlington Hotel while here. Following the limited session in Markell hall, at which the degrees of chief, patriarch and past grand will be conferred, an open meeting will be held in the Crabhorn Theatre. Odd Fellows and their friends from all over the county have been invited to this session. The entertainment provided will consist of motion pictures and music. The visiting officers will then make addresses, and a public reception in the lobby of the theatre will conclude the ceremonies.

DOG FIREMEN'S MASCOT

Strange Animal Follows Truck to Every Fire.

Although the firemen have not officially recognized a mascot, one has attached himself, and he faithfully follows the truck to every fire. A big dog, seemingly of no certain breed, has formed a habit in meeting the truck between First and Second streets and running beside it to all fires.

Whom the animal belongs to is not known. He just exists, although somebody just recently donated a collar to him. One thing the firemen are sure of, the animal doesn't board with them at the station.

Although given no encouragement the dog lies in wait for the truck. He seldom ever misses a alarm. As soon as he hears the siren, he runs for Crawford avenue and generally meets the truck at the bridge, running alongside until the fire is reached.

The firemen have not had a mascot since the days of the old firewagon. Then a big black and white spotted dog always ran ahead of the horses.

ELECT TWO NEW TEACHERS

Miss Ada Musser of Harrisburg Is Chosen to Succeed Miss Frances Freed as German Instructor; Miss Garnet Rhodes of Smithton Elected.

School Board met last night in special session, a meeting having been called to discuss the question of supplies for next year, and to elect two teachers to the Connellsville schools.

Miss Ada Musser of near Harrisburg was chosen to succeed Miss Frances Freed, teacher of German in the high school, who resigned recently to tour the west with her parents. Miss Musser is a graduate of the University of Iowa, and has just finished a special course in German at Columbia University. She has had three years' experience, teaching last year at the Connellsville, Iowa, high school, an institution about the size of this one.

Miss Garnet Rhodes of Smithton was elected a grade teacher, to succeed Miss Ethel Buckingham, resigned. Just where Miss Rhodes will teach is as yet uncertain, and it is likely that several teachers in the grade buildings will be changed about.

The directors last night opened the bids for furnishing supplies for next year's term. President J. R. Davidson had suggested some time ago that these supplies be purchased at once, because of the constantly rising cost of paper and the other directors looked favorably upon this plan.

Last evening the board looked into the prices on paper, tablets and pencils offered by four firms. They found that the cost of some of the supplies had jumped more than 50 percent during the year, and all had increased to high figures.

It is likely that the board at its regular meeting next week will place orders for the supplies. All the directors fear a further advance in prices, and think it will be good business to buy now.
